About Trimmings.
By Request.

There's nothing prettier for skirt trimming than a deep border, and a stylish design uses the trimming up and down, often putting it over a strip of contrasting goods, the same used for basque trimmings; but the border was never invented for the dumpy little woman; she must cling to the panel.

Cords are used profusely; silk lacing cords, 2 1/2 cents the yard. All-sized cords; large cord for edging heavy petticoats, 12 1/2 cents each. Girdle made, ball finished $1.

These goods all come in black and all the new shades. Braid pattern, 35c a yard, 12 ornaments to the yard; 36-inch braid panel, new designs, $1.50. Tinsel braid, all shades, $2 a yard; the silver patterns are especially beautiful. 6-piece braid sets, $1.25. Elegant new silk tape fringes, tipped in bright or dead jets, $1.15 a yard, 3 inches deep. 5-inch silk tape fringe, with jet pendants, $1.50 a yard. These fringes are the latest fashionable wrap trimmings.

We call your special attention to our black and colored out jet trimmings; 7-inch jet ornament, with pendants, 25 cents; 6-inch ornament, all colors, fine cut beads, 30 cents; elegant 14-inch ornament, with cut jet spikes and diamonds, rich out shapes over tiny, fine groundwork, $2.15; 10-inch ornaments, 75 cents; 18-inch beautiful overland designs, $3.50. The most elegant jet panels in the market. Jet patterns by the yard, all colors, iridescent and plain, $2.25, or 35 cents each ornament. Exquisite for plushes and velvets; also used to outline the sleeve seams of wraps. Bead sets, collar, cuffs, and 2 vest pieces, $2.25 and $2.75 a yard.

The most complete stock of fur trimmings, muffs and boas in town.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.
ALL THE YEAR ROUND.
THE ONLY McNICHOLES AT HOME.
Round the loud timbrel and thrille the brass,
Let waiting and weeping be heard for a day;
The summer is fled with its flowers and grass,
The long day hours have vanished away.
Then turn up the fiddle and sing in your place,
For the days that are coming are rapidly now,
For the dead holidays they are nothing to us;
It's into the new ones must every one bow.
Father Christmas is working with might and with doze,
His workshop is up in the frosty blue sky;
Swirl up, happy hearts, he is coming again,
For sure as you live he will come here and bye.
And how will we greet him with poverty sore?
He is proud in his might and likes palace and dome.
He is seldom inclined to revisit the poor,
So quickly refresh and brighten your home.
He reveals in rooms that are cozy and warm,
He travels star 'neath the cold polar star,
With a beautiful basket slung on his arm,
He comes where the well-dressed smart people are,
So trim up your windows with damask and lace,
Get carpets and hassocks of crimson and gold;
Put pictures and portraits in every place,
Where warm, pretty hanging will keep out the cold.
Don't say that you cannot—'tis easy to do,
Choose what you require, what the little ones tickle;
Then go to the man, who is waiting for you,
To help you in trouble, the ONLY McNICHOLES.
Just state your chances and what you can pay,
And make your purchase with his installment plan.
With winter coming on who would hesitate to accept such good things at only the cost of a few dollars here and there each week. Supply there are few people so wise in the town as are calling on McNICHOLES, 1202, 1204, 1206, 1208, Market street.

THE LATEST DYNAMITE SENSATION.
Examination of the Two Americans Arrested on Suspicion.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.
London, November 22.—At Bow street yesterday morning, the Extraordinary Court before Chief Police Magistrate Sir James Ingham, two men were placed in the prisoners, dock to answer to the charge of being in possession of dynamite, and of being concerned in a conspiracy likely to endanger life. The prisoners gave the names of Thomas Callan, alias Thomas Scott, age 45, of Lowell, Mass.; and 34 Baxter road, Bellingham, an operative stocking borer, and Michael Harkins of No. 109 North Second street, Philadelphia, and No. 9 Alfred street, Islington, a grocer. The warrant charged the prisoners with unlawfully conspiring together to cause by explosive substance an explosion in the United Kingdom of a nature likely to endanger life. Detective Superintendent Williamson entered the witness box and, having been sworn, Mr. Alexander, Chief Clerk, read over his sworn information on which the warrants were issued. This information set out that the Superintendent had received information that the two prisoners had come to England and were then in London, and had been for several months, for the purpose of causing an explosion by means of dynamite. From inquiries which he had caused to be made, he discovered that Callan was in possession of a large tin box which he believed to contain explosives and which he had reason to believe he had intended to use in causing explosions by which the lives and property of Her Majesty's subjects would have been endangered. He had found on him a letter signed by Thomas Scott, in which reference was made to destructions of "vies," which means, in his opinion, dynamite. Both men were in possession of revolvers marked with the name of an American firm and had about twenty-five cartridges fitting the revolvers.

THE PRISONERS.
Callan described himself as a stocking-borer of Lowell, Mass. The other man was a hauler on a railroad, and his home is in Philadelphia. Since their arrival in England they had not done any work and were living under false names. On Harkins being arrested, a paragraph out from a newspaper was read referring to a projected meeting at Birmingham, at which Mr. Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, was expected to be present. The men had been seen together often. The Superintendent added that since the above-mentioned information was sworn to, the house in which Callan resided had been searched and a quantity of a substance had been found which had since then been examined by Dr. Dupre, who had pronounced the substance to be dynamite. The police had also seized, at the prisoner's lodgings, a package containing money sent him by Moroney, alias Melville, who was said to be chief of the Clan-na-Gael Society in London. That was all he had to say at present and he begged that a remand might be granted.

Sir James Ingham asked on whom the letter referred to was found. Mr. Williamson said it was found on Callan. Sir James Ingham then directed the prisoners to be remanded till Monday noon. They were at once removed from the dock and were despatched to the House of Detention in the course of the afternoon in a van guarded by an armed escort of mounted constables.

THE SCHOLLEN DISASTER.
Inquest Held on the Bodies at Dover—Testimony of the Survivors.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.
Dover, November 22.—The inquest on the wreck of the S.S. Schollen was opened yesterday afternoon before Mr. S. Payne, Coroner of the borough. Mr. Pritchard attended on the part of the owners of the Rosa Mary. The W. Schollen was only represented by the two surviving officers and M. Schjott, Vice-Consul of the Netherlands, the agent of the Netherlands Steam Navigation Company not having yet arrived. Great interest was taken in the proceedings, the court-room being crowded. Mr. Crundall was chosen foreman of the jury, and the bodies having been inspected evidence was taken with the object of identifying the deceased.

Frank Morris deposed that he was second mate on the Schollen. The crew consisted of about fifty-four men, but he could not say how many passengers there were till the list arrived. H. Huelings, purser on board the Schollen, identified the stewardess, Jeannie Christen, the mate and Henry Blane, a first-class passenger. He also recognized the body of a Paris hotel-keeper, that of Otto Basar, and the bodies of the fourth engineer and of Dewitt, second steward. Witness remained on board the ill-fated vessel till it sank. He was in the water half an hour, and then swam to the Ebo. Henrique Francisco said he was a miner and a passenger. One of the bodies recovered was that of his brother, and they were both from Toledo. Four others from their village were missing.

A PASSENGER'S TESTIMONY.
Thomas Empson, a boatman belonging to Dover, said after the passengers were landed he and four others went out in a boat and cruised about the spot where the vessel sank. They picked up the body marked No. 1 in the dead-house, and also picked up the bodies of two females. The Schooner Ionia halted there and passed over to them four bodies which it had picked up. All had life-belts on except the chief mate.

CAROLINE SCHOLLEN SAID she had been to the dead-house and that the child there was her daughter, named Augusta, and was 7 years of age. She had lost her husband and her boy and girl. She was nearly an hour in the water. She found a sack with straw in it and floated on it. A number of Polish Hebrews also gave evidence as to the identification, and the court adjourned till to-day at 9 o'clock, when an inquiry will be held at the Town Hall and the officers of the Schollen will be examined. There will possibly be a public funeral of the drowned persons to-day. A local banquet has been postponed on account of the disaster.

MR. T. H. FARRINGTON'S TESTIMONY.
Mr. T. H. Farrington, an American gentleman, who was a passenger on the Schollen, made the following statement: "We left Rotterdam shortly after 7 o'clock on Saturday. It was a splendid morning, but about 8 o'clock in the afternoon a fog came on and we were blown out of our course. I saw what appeared to be a three-masted steamer on our quarter. There was terrible confusion, people running here and there, while the officers endeavored to get the ship under way. I saw a large steamer on our starboard bow, and a smaller one on our port bow. I saw a large steamer on our starboard bow, and a smaller one on our port bow. I saw a large steamer on our starboard bow, and a smaller one on our port bow."

she says, "whether the matro was thinking of any new work." The good and distinguished lady, who is really the guardian angel of her husband, replied: "For mercy's sake let him rest; don't you think he has taken his head cool?"
